Dear Jiyoon Pyo, 5570690:

I am very pleased to offer you a graduate assistant position for Fall Semester 2023 and Spring Semester 2024. Specific graduate assistant assignments are still being evaluated, but your appointment will be for one of the following classification titles: Research Assistant (9521) or Teaching Assistant (9511) in Computer Science & Engineering at the University of Minnesota. General information about graduate assistant appointments can be found online at: https://hr.umn.edu/Jobs/Student-Job-Center/Graduate-Assistant-Employment/About-Graduate-Assistant-Employment . The legal name, address and phone number of the employer is University of Minnesota, 100 Donhowe Building, 319 15th Ave. SE, Minneapolis MN 55455; (800) 756-2363.

The terms of this offer are outlined below:

- This is an annual appointment for the 2023-2024 Academic Year. This assistantship is renewable each year or up to a total of two (2) years, subject to satisfactory academic progress toward your degree, your satisfactory performance of assistantship duties, and availability of departmental funding in the future year.
- To receive support, all students must maintain eligibility for graduate student employment. This eligibility includes: registration for at least 6 credits; maintenance of health insurance; completion of required training, maintaining GPA standard, etc. Serious misconduct, including but not limited to criminal activity or academic misconduct, may be reason to withdraw a fellowship or assistantship.
- Your advisor will be Professor Yao-Yi Chiang.
- The mutually agreed upon start date for this appointment is August 28, 2023. Please check with your supervisor to arrange a location to meet on your first day. A map is enclosed for your convenience.
- The end date for this appointment will be May 26, 2024.
- Your total salary is $21,879.00 with an hourly rate of $28.05, a 50% appointment
- Pay Periods are 14 days in length. They start on a Monday and end two weeks later on a Sunday, you are then paid 10 days later on Wednesdays on a biweekly basis. You may expect your first paycheck on September 20, 2023.

- Your position fits one of the "Student-Employees" exemptions from the overtime provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act and applicable Minnesota law.
- Deductions will be taken from your paycheck as required by law for federal and state income tax withholding. There will be a deduction of 6.2% for Social Security (Old-Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance) up to the applicable income limit, and 1.45% for Medicare, unless you are temporarily present in the U.S. on an F-1, J-1, M-1, and Q-1 visa, and a nonresident for income tax purposes under section 7701(b) of the Internal Revenue Code (other conditions also apply). Social Security and Medicare taxes together may be referred to as "Federal Insurance Contribution Act" or "FICA" taxes. You may elect voluntary deductions for employee benefits.
- You are not eligible for vacation benefits, but sick leave and other benefits are described here: https://policy.umn.edu/hr/gradstudentemployment-appf.
- A document describing tuition benefits associated with graduate assistantships is enclosed. Please note that tuition benefits do not cover student fees.
- You are responsible for paying all fees. You should expect to pay at least $1,107.00 for health insurance and fees your first semester and $957.00 each Fall and Spring semester following that.
- As a graduate assistant you qualify for enrollment in the Graduate Assistant Health Insurance Plan if hours to be worked will meet a minimum of at least 195 per semester. You may pick up an enrollment packet from your department or at the Graduate Assistant Health Insurance Office at N323 Boynton Health Service. Information may be found online at: https://shb.umn.edu/health-plans/gahp-home. You are also eligible to enroll your dependents for dependent health insurance under the same plan in which you enroll, with the University subsidizing a portion of the cost of the dependent premiums as well.
- You have a right to review your personnel file once every six months while employed with the University of Minnesota. To exercise this right, you must submit a written request to review your file to Mary Nissen, cshr@umn.edu. If, after reviewing your file, you dispute specific information, please inform Mary Nissen, cshr@umn.edu. The University may agree to remove or revise the disputed information. After you have had an opportunity to review your file, you may make a written request for a copy of the record at no cost to you.

Language Requirements for International Students

- All international graduate students are required to submit ELP information in order to hold Teaching Assistantship positions with the department.
- In accordance with University and federal guidelines, if your ELP score is currently a "2", "3", or "4", you will be required to enroll in either GRAD 5102 or GRAD 5105.
- All first-year international graduate students are required to participate in CSE: Teaching and Language Kick-Off (TALK).

  CSE: TALK provides first-year international graduate students with discipline-specific information, teaching practice, and English appropriate to needs as future teaching assistants. The program consists of a two-week in-person session preceded by a one-week online session.

  More information regarding participation in CSE:TALK will be sent to all first-year international graduate students in early May.

Action Items Prior to First Day of Employment

- Federal law requires that all employees be authorized to work in the United States. This employment offer is contingent upon verification that you meet this requirement. In addition, if you are here on a non-immigrant visa, you must be authorized specifically to work at the University of Minnesota. Regardless of your citizenship status, you must: 1) complete and submit Section 1 of the I-9 Form found at http://www.newi9.com on or before your first day of work for pay, 2) provide the required I-9 documentation described on the I-9 form to establish your identity and authorization to work on or before your first day of work for pay, and 3) receive confirmation from the University that your documentation satisfies the federal law requirements. Your employment, including any rights and privileges afforded under the University's codes, policies, and agreements applicable to your position, does not begin until all of these steps have been completed. If you report to your first day of work without the required I-9 documentation, you will not be allowed to start work, or remain in the workplace until you present the required documents.
- Please review the Required Proof of COVID-19 Vaccination or Exemption addendum and be prepared to bring acceptable proof of vaccination or completed request for exemption on your first day of employment. If you have already uploaded proof of vaccination or submitted an exemption request as part of enrollment requirements for the 2023-2024 academic year, you don't need to enter this information again.
- You are responsible for continuing to comply with any and all licensing, certification or other requirements for the position, which will include taking the Sexual Misconduct Training shortly after your appointment starts.

I would be happy to answer any questions you may have or provide further clarity on your appointment. Should you decide to accept this position, return the enclosed copy of this letter with your signature and date indicating that you have read and fully understand the provisions of your employment as explained above. Please proceed to make an appointment with Phil Croteau, cspay@umn.edu at 612-625-4002 so that appropriate documents connected with your acceptance of this new position may be completed.

We look forward to working with you and anticipate that your employment here will be rewarding to both you and the Department of Computer Science & Engineering.

Sincerely,

Mats Heimdahl
Department Head

Employment Terms and Conditions for University of Minnesota Graduate Assistants

Policy and Guideline information pertaining to graduate assistantship employment is available online at: https://hr.umn.edu/Jobs/Student-Job-Center/Graduate-Assistant-Employment/About-Graduate-Assistant-Employment, from your hiring department, or from Graduate Assistant Employment. Please be aware you are responsible for knowing the policies and guidelines applicable to your appointment as a graduate assistant.

In addition to the terms and conditions set forth in your graduate assistant appointment letter, graduate assistantships are contingent upon admission to the Graduate School, current registration as a graduate student and satisfactory progress toward a Graduate School degree. In order to hold a graduate assistantship during fall or spring semester, you are required to be registered for credit (audit registration only is not acceptable). For regular assistantships, six credits of registration are required; for Advanced Masters and Ph.D. Candidate positions, one credit is required. If personal circumstances require registration for fewer than six credits, you may apply for an exception. For details, see the above website. Registration during May Intersession and summer term are not required to hold an assistantship.

Registration must be completed by the end of the second week of classes and maintained for the entire semester or your graduate assistantship will be terminated. Withdrawal from all credits will result in termination of your assistantship. If your assistantship is terminated, the hiring department has the option of converting your appointment to a non-student classification for the remainder of that semester only; however, benefits such as your graduate assistant health insurance plan and tuition benefits may be adversely affected.

Tuition benefits will be available to you if you meet eligibility requirements. These benefits are summarized on the following pages. Further details may be found online at: https://hr.umn.edu/Jobs/Student-Job-Center/Graduate-Assistant-Employment/About-Graduate-Assistant-Employment

You may enroll in the Graduate Assistant Health Insurance Plan if you meet eligibility requirements. If you are interested in this coverage, you must enroll through the Graduate Assistant Health Insurance Office located at N323 Boynton Health Service, 612-624-0627.

If you have F-1 or J-1 visa status, federal law prohibits the University from employing you more than 20 hours per week (50% time) during scheduled class periods and finals weeks. Exceptions exist if you have been authorized for 'practical or academic training.' Consult with the Office of International Student and Scholar Services over these matters.

TUITION BENEFITS

Student Fees

Tuition benefits do not cover student fees; you will be responsible for paying your fees.

Waiver of Nonresident Portion of Tuition

Graduate Assistants who work a minimum of 25% time (10 hours per week) per semester and are properly registered are eligible to receive resident rate tuition during that semester. Resident rate tuition also applies to eligible students' immediate family members (spouse or registered same sex domestic partner, children, parents, or legal guardian or ward living in the household).

Maximum Benefits per Semester

A graduate assistant appointed 50% time (an average of 20 hours per week) for the full-semester payroll period (which begins before the start of classes and extends beyond finals week) typically receives a tuition benefit equivalent to the Graduate School's tuition band level (at resident rates). This benefit would cover 6-14 credits per semester. Those in the Advanced Masters or Ph.D. Candidate job classes receive a benefit equal to one credit of Graduate School tuition. Legal Project Assistants with Tuition Benefits receive the equivalent of Law School tuition. Medical Fellows must work 100% time for the full semester to receive the equivalent of the Graduate School's tuition band level.

Prorated Tuition Benefits

Graduate assistants appointed for less than 50% time or for less than the full semester payroll period will not receive the maximum tuition benefits. Their benefits are prorated according to the total number of hours worked over the 19.5 week payroll semester. Maximum benefits require appointments of at least 390 hours per semester (20 hours x 19.5 weeks). Appointments for fewer than 97.5 hours per semester (equivalent to a 12.5% appointment for the full term) do not qualify for any tuition benefit.

The tuition benefit percentage can be calculated by dividing total semester hours of employment by 390. A full-semester 25% appointment (195 hours) receives half of the Graduate School tuition band level. Full term appointments between 25% and 50% receive prorated tuition benefits, the percentage equivalent to double their appointment percentage (e.g., a 40%appointment receiving 80% tuition benefit).

Appointments Beginning After or Ending Before the Official Semester Appointment Dates

Appointments that begin after or end before the official semester appointment dates will be prorated according to total hours worked for the semester payroll period. The student will have the unearned portion of tuition benefits billed to them, at non-resident rates if applicable. If the shortened appointment falls below the 97.5-hour eligibility threshold (equivalent to a 12.5%-time appointment for the full semester period), 100% of the tuition will be billed to the student, at non-resident rates.

Appointments Ending Due to Graduation

If an appointment ends early due to graduation, the student may receive the full tuition benefit awarded for that final term of employment as a graduate assistant if they complete their degree that semester.

Summer Tuition Benefits

Nine-month academic year assistantships carry no summer tuition benefit. Summer benefits are earned only from hours of assistantship employment during the 13-week summer period between spring and fall semesters. In order to provide comparable maximum benefits to those earned during an academic year semester, summer benefits accrue at a 50% faster rate; maximum benefits (typically, the Graduate School's tuition band level) are earned for 260 hours of summer employment (i.e. 20 hours x 13 weeks) and lesser hours are prorated according to that 260 hour norm. The minimum summer appointment threshold for tuition benefits is 65 hours. Benefits are higher for the 9574 job class, Summer Session Teaching Assistant, and are calculated differently. See the GAO website (http://www1.umn.edu/ohr/employment/gae) for details.

Extended Waiver of Nonresident Portion of Tuition

Former graduate assistants, their immediate family members, and/or domestic partners are eligible to receive extended resident rate reductions if the graduate assistant has held at least two semesters of qualifying appointments (at least 25% time). This benefit is extended to graduate assistants who are no longer employed as graduate assistants for a maximum of four semesters, one term of extended benefit earned for each term of employment. Extended benefits must be used within three years of the last term of assistantship appointment.

Provisional Tuition Benefits

A department may place a graduate assistant on a provisional appointment (flexible hourly) whereby the assistant may receive a tuition benefit at the beginning of the semester based upon an estimation of the number of hours the assistant will work per week. The department shall submit the actual number of hours worked by the assistant at the end of the semester to Graduate Assistant Employment. Any hours worked in excess of the estimated number will result in a tuition benefit credit, if applicable. If fewer hours are worked than the estimated number, the student will be billed for the unearned portion of tuition benefits, at non-resident rates if applicable. If the total number of hours worked per semester falls below the 12.5% time minimum eligibility requirement (97.5 hours) in order to receive a tuition benefit, the student will be billed for the entire tuition benefit received, at non-resident rates if applicable.
